"Our Town"

by J. B. WHITE

Nearlly all the houses in Ruidoso are built of pine. When the architecture varies you see the Spanish type. Here in Lincoln National Forest is an extensive logging industry and Ruidoso has two saw mills. Much of the pine is red. They produce slab with the bark on and this type material is impressively rustic. Pines grow along the streets and are so thick along the cabin areas there are no roads. The town has one street but it is six miles long. Ruidoso is an incorporated city. The only law is a Constable. He is the tallest man in the city and has a cone crush on his New Mexico sombrero. Two guns swing business-like at his hips and so far I haven't seen anyone dispute his right to walk down the street. The municipal building is a small pine structure about 14x22 but the city owns it. They do not pay rent as we do in Cameron. I looked in on a sesison of the council last night. Ruidoso has a resident population of about 1500. In the peak tourist season there are 10,000 here. The Chamber of Commerce and the Ruidoso News office together. The paper is printed in Las Cruces. Editor Lloyd P. Bloodworth, the owner, is also interested in local real estate. Nearly everybody is. There are numerous real estate firms. Property values are high along the river front. A. W. von Struve is managing editor of the paper, an 8-page weekly, with stereotyped ads. The subscription rate is $2.50. L. B. Autry is advertising manager. I knew von Struve in the old days at Austin when I was correspondent for The San Antonio Express. We had quite a chat and he invited me to the Lions Club but we had a trip lined up for the White Sands National Monument at Almagordo and could not attend. The Lions Club here has 60 members. There are no Rotary Clubs nearer than Almagordo. The Lions Club here meets at night. Jack Hull, the poastmaster, is a business man on the side, owns a large cafe and cabins and other properties. Ruidoso is in the heart of the Lincoln National Forest and you are given a map here at Dan Swearingen's cabins showing the places of interest. There are a number of riding stables. The down right Easterner cannot separate a vacation from a horse-and so they can be seen by the dozens cantering off into the mountains every hour of the day. I always

Promotion Day at First Baptist Church Set for Sunday, September 29

Sunday, September 29 will be Promotion Day at the First Baptist church, Cameron. According to announcement from the church officials it will close out a very successful year of Sunday School work. The church reports that during the last three months the average attendance of the church school has increased over a half a hundred in attendance with new members to the Sunady School being added almost each Sunday.

Rev. L. L. Morriss, pastor of the church, announces that Promotion Day will be a great event in the lives of the young people of the church. On this occasion children will be promoted to higher grades from the Nursery Classes on through the Young Peoples departments. For the special day Mr. Morriss plans to preach on "The Mission of Jesus" at the morning worship hour and in the evening message he will preach on "The Tragedy of a Preachers Home."

Mr. Grady Cooper has been reelected to serve another year as Sunday School Supt. at the local church. This will be his fifth successive year to head up this organization that boasts over sixty faculty members alone.

MARAK PICNIC IS SET FOR SUNDAY OCTOBER 6

The annual picnic and bazaar at Marak will be held on Sunday, Oct. 6, it has just been announced by Father Ben Holub.

The entertainment is being sponsored by the SS. Cyril and Methodius Church and dinner will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Supper will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. The menu will consist of chicken and sausage with the trimmings.

Much interest centers about the auction when a bicycle, a radio and a fluorescent light will be given away. Those who wish to participate in this free award do not have to be present. These awards will be made at 9 p.m.

There will be music throughout the day and at night. Says Father Holub: "We invite all our good friends to come out to Marak on the 6th of October."

Mrs. John Henry Wilson has returned home from the Kings Daughters hospital at Temple, and is doing nicely.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE

The people of Cameron no doubt are puzzled and greatly disappointed over the submission by the City Council of a proposal to bond them for $500,000 for a dual system of light and power.

We had been led to believe that needed improvements would be made. We were not prepared to accept as wise or even remotely necessary, an attempt to build a light and power plant when we already have those utilities.

If the City Council had called for street paving or any number of other improvements we could suggest and for which we stand in such great need, the people no doubt would have felt their leaders were acting wisely.

Let us not deceive ourselves. There is no known path from rags to riches in a system of public utility competition. Frustration and chaos are often the result and such a fate may await Cameron. We do not have the cause nor the resoufces to wage such a fight.

We repeat by asking: Do we need things we already have? What about the things we do not have?

People with civic itch are sometimes prone to scratch in the wrong place.

CAMERON IS HOST BAND AT TECH-AGGIE GAME

LUBBOCK, Sept. 26.—When members of the Cameron High school band journey to Alamo Stadium, San Antonio, to provide music for Texas Technological College rooters at the Tech-Texas A&M football game, Sept. 28, the young Cameronites will be representing the third largest college in Texas.

Although Tech is a comparatively new school, having opened in Lubbock in 1925, its enrollment now exceeds 5300, including students from all over Texas, many other states of the union and five foreign countries. The school's sprawling campus, covering well over two square miles, is said to be the largest in the world.

In anticipation of continued growth, the college has this year launched a major expansion program which is bringing to its campus four new dormitories, providing accomodations for 1424 students, a new $300,000 stadium and other needed buildings. Plans have also been laid for other construction on the campus. Dr. W. M. Whyburn, president, will ask the State Board of Control and Legislature for funds to provide additional classrooms, laboratories and other facilities needed to care for the rapidly expanding enrollment.

These structures will supplement present buildings, which include administration, agriculture, engineering, textile, West Texas Museum, gymnasium, home economics, home management house, stock pavilion and other farm buildings, press, chemistry, library, bookstore, college cafeteria, cooperative house for women students and four dormitories.

All major buildings are of modified Spanish architecture, reflecting the the colorful history of Texas' early days.

The spirit of the old West still prevails at the college, and the student body has attained the reputation for being among the friendliest and most democratic of any. By a ruling of the board of directors, secret Greek letter social sororities and fraternities are forbidden.

However, Tech has always encouraged other student activities, and some 70 clubs are now active on the campus, including national konorary

CONVICTS PREPARING FOR PRISON RODEO

By C. C. Springfield

HUNTSVILLE, Sept. 25.—For almost a year, some four thousand Texas Prison System inmates have been preparing for their 15th Annual Prison Rodeo.

Now, they have only to wait for October 6, the first of the four Sunday shows that begin at 2 P.M. in the stadium next to the Huntsville penitentiary.

It's the World's wildest and fastest show. It's also plenty rough on plenty of tough inmates.

In fact, there just isn't a sport that's rougher than the bull riding contests when Brahman bulls lock horns with Texas lock-busters.

Right now, the riders are ready to go. For that matter, all the convicts are ready, although their 'going" is somewhat hampered by legal red tape and numerous shotgun guards. Just the same, they're ready.

Practice, and plenty for anyone, is the main activity under way now.

Riggin's being readied; stock are bing groomed; riders are being fitted with zoot-suit raiment.

Yes, stripes will be the fashion at this year's style show!

All the contestants — even the clowns — will enter the arena in stripes.

Solely for photogenic effects, however, since stripes in prison are reserved for escapists and mutineers.

Albert Moore, director of this 15th Annual Rodeo, says this will be the fastest show yet. He has added 16 Montana Bucking horses to his string.

Bert Stonehocker, the head clown, was troubled until recently.

Same trouble as that besetting free world merchants and entrepreneurs.

No help!

Then came the miracle! Bill Garrett, participant in a dozen shows, returned

His conditional pardon has been revoked.

Garertt says he had it done himself, so that he could see the show from behind the scenes, so to speak.

W. Albert Lee, of Houston, Prison Board Member and Chairman of the Rodeo committee, says he has signed up Guadalupe Partido, Charro (roping) Champion of the Republic of Mexico. Partido will bring Valentino

Grandmother put away her old oil lamp in 1915

Grandmother and grandfather signed up for electricity 'way back when the Texas Power & Light Company built a power line past the farm in 1915. Even then, this Texas company, pioneering in rural electric service, was extending its lines as rapidly as possible to bring the modern conveniences of electricity to farms and rural homes. By 1921, this company's rural lines served 6,926 families; by 1931, the number increased to 13,323, and today the company serves more than 44,000 rural and farm homes in North, Central and East Texas.

In 1945, Texas Power & Light Company built 825 miles of rural lines, bringing dependable, low-cost electric service to approximately 5,000 new farm and rural users, increasing the total of its rural lines to more than 7,000 miles. This year, construction plans call for the addition of about 1,000 miles of new rural lines by the company to bring service to still another 5,000 new users.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM

Electricity takes the place of many farm hands, in getting the chores done. Electric power pumps water to the house and barn, grinds the feed, milks the cow, separates and churns the milk, operates freezers, brooders, blowers to cure the hay . . . and does many other farm jobs that formerly required back-breaking labor.

Thanks to cheap electricity, the modern farm housewife enoys the comforts and conveniences of the city home, with her quick-freeze unit, electric clothes washer, dishwasher, sweeper, iron and other time- and labor-saving electrical appliances.

Injuries to Yoemen are beginning to bring gray hairs to the youthful head of Coach Leo Jackson.

In the opening game last Friday, Bob Holloway, an end, was kept out of play with a sprained ankle, which did not heal in time for play.

During the game against Marlin, Richard Burke, playing a jamb-up game at right half, was forced from the game with an injured arm, but later returned. The following day X-rays revealed the arm was broken and he is lost for some time.

Tuesday in practice Bobby Hanes sustained a broken collar bone. He is lost forever to the team since this is the fourth time he has broken the same bone.

As game time tomorrow night at Caldwell approaches, the Coach is walking around with his fingers crossed, and looking dolefully at his scant crew of experienced reserves.

Melma Albert of Burlington was in Cameron this week.

Pvt. Raymond Perry who is stationed at San Antonio recently visited his mother, Mrs. Lois McGoldrick.

Miss Cora Baggett, a patient in the Newton Memorial Hospital, is reported to be improving nicely.

BOB HOLLOWAY

Worry is often the lot of a football coach and Bob Holloway's injury is causing line Coach Dick Young no end of grief. Bob weighs 165 pounds, is 14 years old and one of the brightest prospects to don the uniform in a long time. An ankle sprain has kept him out of top form for some time. The Yoemen line this year is tops but with little reserve power. Bob plays left end and Joe Hawkins right end. Coach Leo Jackson will be needing this big end Friday night against Navasota.

Mrs. B. Slocomb has concluded a nine-week vacation, and has returned to her home in Cameron. Her trip took her to many interesting points all through the west coast, including Canada, Los Angeles, and Salt Lake City. She spent two weeks in Oregon and several days in Vancouver where she boarded a boat for Victoria and then on to Seattle. Mrs. Slocomb plans to attend Salt Lake City's Centennial celebration next year on July 24th.

feel sorry for the horses. To get on top of Old Baldy the 12,000 foot peak at the end of main street, you drive in your car as far as possible then an enterprising stable man provides horses. On top they say is a good place to rest and eat but since we have as good as one could wish for I think I will not try to go up on top of this mountain. I grew up on a cattle ranch in Southwest Texas and knew the cowboys that never got inside a drug store. Tomorrow more about Ruidoso.

Since Ruidoso is principally a summer resort and is attracting an increasing number of tourists and tired people who are worn out from the grind back home, the leaders here have seen to it that entertainment of a wide variety is provided. Ruidoso is a modern little city and has its night life. Down some two miles from our cabin the lights blaze and the big butter and egg men have their fling. Liquors are sold by the drink in New Mexico as well as by the package. Good whiskey here sells from $10 to $12 a fifth and that is over $120 a case. Beer is reasonably cheap. In the old days men hung a 4-inch boot heel over the brass rail and tossed off their pizen at two drinks for a quarter. The enterprising business man with an eye on the tourists' pocketbook charges 60 cents per drink. Gambling is not legal in New Mexico but in Ruidoso it is one of the big thrills of night life. It is not the scullery type that we have in Cameron. Here you walk up and lay your hard earned cash down, call for chips and write the wife to put another mortgage on the little gray home in the west. People from the cities as well as the hinterlands want a good time and out here they can find anything they want in the way of entertainment from the jades in the banjo rooms to the roulette tables in the swank of exclusive clubs. There are some half dozen cocktail bars and many just plain, old fashioned saloons. The bartender wears sleeveholders and has mustache and parts his hair in the middle. Ruidoso does not overlook trade in other lines. The curio stores and trading posts are doing a good business. Right now the town is somewhat vacated because it is getting cooler back in the states and folks are going home. Permanent residents here have built dream houses on the sides of the mountains. The Chamber of Commerce is building up its campaign of publicity to make Ruidoso a winter resort as well. North of Old Baldy around Lake Bonita skiing is possible because of the heavy snow falls in winter. Here in Ruidoso hundreds of skis are for rent. They also ski on the gypsum sands at Alamagordo. At Cloudcroft golfers play on the highest course in the world, some 9000 feet or more up. The hunting season opens in November. They kill bear, elk, deer, mountain lions and bob cats. Swimming beaches are located at Carrizo here at Ruidoso. Within 30 minutes you can be in the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation and I hope to do a small story on my visit there yesterday. We hope to drive up to Santa Fe and to Taos before we leave. I have always hoped to see the grave of Kit Carson. Tomorrow the white sands national monument.

One evening Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor visited the gypsum beds, called the White Sands, and exclaimed, "This is one of the Natural Wonders of the World. I place is on a par with Carlbad Caverns and Grand Canyon." These white sands stretch for 42 miles along the bed of the great Tularoso Basin. To the north a short distance lies the Lava Beds one may see four miles west of Carrizzo. The deposit is some ten miles wide at their greatest spread. To reach them we motored down to Alamagordo. She State of New Mexico and the Federal Government have completed 23 miles of black top road that runs in front of the $100,000 headquarters and museum buildings. These structures are of copied arctitecture from Navajo villages. In recent years more than $350,000 has been invested to provide the more than 100,000 yearly visitors with services and facilities to enjoy this scenic recreational area. In the museum are reconstructed geological displays to portray the origin and scientific explanation of this great phenomena of nature. To the layman I would say these White Sands are an unresolved national wonder for they defy description and stagger the imagination. As you turn in at the hearquarters you drive nine miles into the center of these sands on a perfect road that leads into the heart of the deposit. Here are play grounds and skiing is one of the sports to say nothing of the thousands who sun bleach as if they were on the sands of the sea shore. Vegetation grows on these sand dunes and on the flat beds of gypsum and at the base, the soil is similar to the red sands of the surrounding basin and much the same as you find on the staked plains and in the valley of the Brazos in Texas. The only known life in these wastes are white mice and small lizards that also take on the color of the sands. Tom Charles, of Alamagordo, the first custodian of White Sands said, in an invitation written a few years years ago, just what we thing should be said now: "To you who have never seen the Sands, I want to invite you to come and I hope that you see them on an evening just as the setting sun breaks through a canopy of clouds above the rugged San Andres, painting the points of the hills in yellow and gold; with here and there a burning ball of fire; that the mountains themselves are purple and blue and the deep shadows of the sands stand out against the snow white hills. As you linger in the twilight, I hope that a gust of wind will come up over the long slope and sweep up an eddy of swirling sand, and as it reaches the summit, it will stand erect, almost in human form, and then stop and bend as if peering into the shadows and run along the rippled edge and stop and bend again, then disappear into the darkness. For then you will have seen the Palo Blanco, the White Wraith, the ghost of the beautiful woman, who according to the Spanish legend, comes nightly, dressed in the flowing white robes of her wedding gown and looks and searches for her lover, lost and buried in the great White Sands. As you stand peering into the darkness, listening to the silence of the desert without the whisper of a single leaf, you'll turn, half frightened, and face the full red moon as it rises over the Sacramento mountains, scattering its millions of diamonds over every rippled sand dune. And you will have seen the great White Sands." Tomorrow more about the great White Sands.

As far as the eye can see are the undulating dunes of brilliant white sand. This is the largest of the world's deposit of gypsum. Its whiteness transcends that of snows on a mountain side or lying deep on the basin floor. Shifting softly, slowly with the desert winds, these dunes extend for 224 square miles. Under a brilliant desert sun they glisten whiter than the billowing clouds above. Like snow, are these miles of sand—and yet they are not sand at all, but pure gypsum. Some of these dunes are more than 50 feet high. These sands lie north and south between two mountain ranges. The Tularoso Basin slopes gently from all directions, forming a great natural basin with Lake Lucero at the southwestern extremity of the White Sands. Geologists say that millions of years ago this basin was formed by the settling of a huge block of a high plateau. This is indicated by the occurance of thick beds of gypsum beneath the floor of the basin. Remnants of the same beds are found high above the valley floor, in the parts of the plateau that did not settle and which are now the mountain ranges flanking the valley. It is interesting to note that gypsum is the mineral from which plaster of Paris is made. Its massive translucent form is called alabaster and here at the museum curio shop you can buy plaques and crosses made from the sands by an artisan in Alamogordo. Nature's process here is one of the most remarkable that has come to the knowledge of man. Percolating waters from rains and melting snows carry tons of gypsum in solution from the montains into Lake Lucero each winter, while underground waters dissolve gypsum from the beds beneath the valley floor. For months each year, cloudless skies and warm winds evaporate the water. Lake Lucero shrinks to a crystal-encrusted marsh, and the gypsum-impregnated underground waters are drawn to the surface where they deposit their burden, forming extensive alkalai flats. The ever active southwest wind picks up the particles of gypsum left by the evaporating water and whirls them away to join the accumulations of centuries, the dunes of snow white sand. Thus the dunes are ever growing, ever moving, ever changing. As we climbed a high dune and looked across the expanse of this mystifying splendor we were overwhelmed with the realization that we had somehow touched the lamp of Aladdin to look in upon this world of magic. Driving along yesterday from Carrizozza and into Alamogordo we moved into the story world of Legene Manlove Rhodes for it was here that he wrote most of his fascinationg tales. By request he lies buried in the pass of the San Andres mountains. Tomorrow we visit Old Lincoln.

We put out early Wednesday from our cabin in the Ruidoso canyon and turned away over highway 70 down the valley of the Hondo and through the apple orchards to the little village by the same name, then over 380 to Lincoln. Here in south central New Mexico the text book of local knowledge are the sagas of Billy The Kid. Most everyone you meet can relate off hand all the exciting stories about this Brooklyn born kid who killed his frirst man at the age of 12 with a knife to avenge an insult to his mother. Old Lincoln once the turbulent center of a war of bad men who fought over the riches of the valleys of the Capitan mountain range, is now a ghost town. The county seat of Lincoln county has long since been moved to Carrizozzo the coal shuttle of the upper Tularosa basin where the Southern Pacific comes in from Colorado and threads its way across the desert to El Paso. The scene of one of the richest of the early day cattle ranges, Lincoln was the county seat, and its environs the Capitan range where Billy The Kid found sanctuary from the law and who finally died with his boots on regretting he had only 21 notches on his gun. He wanted 23. Driving into the central street of old Lincoln you automatically stop in the space that separates the old court house from the Maes store. On the front of the store in bold letters is the sign, "Lincoln Saloon," put there in 1881. Here the colorful men who were to play their part in the fueds, including Billy The Kid, disported themselves in the raw pleasures of the day. The store is now owned by Roman Montoya Maes, whose father came into possession of the property shortly after the guns had been silenced with the establishment of law and order. Here you can buy photos of The Kid and Pat Garrett, sheriff, who killed him, and dozens of others who figured in the early history of the town. In the back room some 30 feet square the old bar and fixtures of solid mahogany and now things of antique beauty and value, have been placed and carefully preserved as they were in their once resplendent array out front where the gun fighters stepped in from the dirt walk to drink. A legend of Billy The Kid is that he never took a drink in his life. Mr. Maes is also custodian of the court house which is a museum and he took us across the street, unlocked the door and left us there to browse through the lobby and halls that seemed to reek of violence. Sketches of history hang at vantage points to point out the scenes that revolve principally around that fateful day in the late Seventies when The Kid, under sentence to die, killed two guards, Bell and Ollinger, and escaped to the Capitan mountains. Tomorrow more of the same.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 29.

The Golden Text is: "In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God" (Psalms 62:7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living" (Psalms 27:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science texthbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If sin, sickness and death were understood as nothingness, they would disappear. As vapor melts before the sun, so evil would vanish before the reality of good. One must hide the other. How important, then, to choose good as the reality!" (page 480).

Going Fishing? Here's How!

To hear Willie Wells and Basil Strube arguing about trout fishing, you'd think it was more important than the atom bomb.

Willie favors dry flies, Basil pooh-poohs anything but wet flies. Willie swears by a Royal Coachman; Basil won't hear of anything but a Silver Doctor. And by the time it comes to steel rods versus bamboo rods . . . #!X&!?!

But on Saturday, each got back from Seward's creek with a catch that couldn't have differed by more than several ounces!

Each had used his favorite kind of fly, his favorite rod and his favorite place to cast. So over a friendly glass of beer, they allowed as how maybe they were both right . . . which is how so many arguments should end.

From where I sit, if we all respected one another's different opinions—whether about trout flies, or drinking beer, or voting, life would be a whole lot pleasanter.

and professional organizations, service clubs, religious clubs, divisional and departmental groups, a war veterans association and 12 purely social clubs.

The divisions of the college include Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Home Economics, Engineering, Commerce, Graduate and Extension.

Tech's textile engineering department is the only department in its field west of the Mississippi River, one of ten in the United States. The department's primary aim is to train Texas men and women in utilization of Texas' many resources, among which textile fibers, cotton, wool and mohair are quite important in the state's economy. The textile engineering building contains a complete cotton manufacturing plant, as well as wool equipment and auxiliary apparatus, valued at over $300,000.

Other departments in the Division of Engineering include architecture and allied arts, and chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical and petroleum engineering.

Two cotton research groups, the Research Committee of Texas and the Chicopee Manufacturing company's laboratory, are working on the Texas Tech campus, their program independent of the college's educational work.

The Home Economics Division offers a course designed to co-ordinate home economics courses with other general and scientific subjects. Among the outstanding projects undertaken by home economics students are a nursery school and the cafeteria for students and faculty members.

This lad is a top roper, able to lasso ten horses at once.

The convict band, aided by inmates transferred from other units, is about ready and promises plenty of hot licks during the show.

"Piddlers," as inmate craftworkers are known behind the walls, are working every spare minute to manufacture novelties for sale at the show.

Piddlers are inmate merchant-manufacturers who buy their own leather, silver, semi-precious stones, and other raw goods, and turn out purses, billfolds, belts, buckles, rings—even an occasional blackjack.

The novelties are sold throughout the year as well as at the rodeo.

One inmate said he was "trying to make enough to put his boy through high school."

Others use their earnings for cigarettes, writing paper and other incidentals.

Comes in handy when there are no homefolks to furnish spending money.

Performers are recruited from the ranks. Practically all are rank amateurs. A limited few have had previous cowboy experience.

When the sign up to ride they absolve the System of blame in case of accident.

Albert Moore warns them that they contest on a voluntary basis for the prize and day-money.

Even so, some of the amateurs, after a ride or so, make up in guts what they lack in balance and training.

One convict, urged to quit after half a dozen training tumbles, shook his head resolutely.

"What! . . . And have them fellas think I'm yellow? . . . Oh, no! Lemme on that bull."

As rough as it is, the convicts flock to the bull riding event, perhaps because it is so colorful.

It's truly a "gambol" with death. However, most convicts are gamblers. They gambled on the outside with the Law and lost. Inside, they take on the bulls.

"I got a lot of satisfaction from the few rides I did make on one of those Brahman bulls," said one inmate, "for I felt that I was getting even with the harness bulls, the men who put me in this place."

'The Southerner' Brings Story of Sturdy Folk To Cameron Screen

A heart-warming bit of Americana is "The Southerner," the Jean Renoir production which will be on the Cameron Theatre screen Thursday and Friday, starring Zachary Scott and Betty Field. Adapted from George Sessions Perry's prize-winning novel, "Hold Autumn In Your Hand," it is the story of a sturdy young migratory cotton picker whose love of the land gives him the courage to forsake this doubtful security for the bitter battle with nature that is the lot of the man who raises his own crops.

One of the most poignant moments in the film is the scene showing Sam Tucker and his little family lighting the first fire in the crude shack that is the beginning of the peace and security Sam hopes to wrest from the soil. Although we don't see it, we know that he is going to win. It gives you a glow of pride in these people who are your neighbors. It will give you a bit more courage, too.

Zachary Scott is splendid in the role of the land-worshipping young farmer. As his wife, we cannot think of a better choice than Betty Field. She is one of the most capable and sincere young actresses of the day. There is a delightful characterization presented by Beulah Bondi in the role of a shrewish old Granny. She is good for many chuckles. Two children, Daisy and Jot, round out this valiant group.

The picture is a United Artists release, produced by David L. Loew and Robert Hakim. Fine performances by an excellent supporting cast add to the excellent entertainment value of this worthy picture. Chief among these players are Blanche Yurka, Percy Kilbride, J. Carrol Naish, Charles Kemper and Norman Lloyd. There is, also, a colorful bit contributed by Estelle Taylor.

Among the more than five hundred students enrolled this fall at Austin College, Sherman, is Clarence Eugene Phipps, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Phipps, route 4. Phipps served 42 months in the United States Navy, and has registered for a course at AC in physical education.

Mrs. L. W. Grayson of Beeville is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mattie Houston.

Mrs. Dr. Titsworth visited relatives in Thorndale over the weekend.

Friends of W. B. Walden will be glad to know he is doing nicely as a patient in the Newton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. A. E. Horstmann of Buckholts was a visitor in Cameorn recently.

MARAK-YARRELTON ROAD TO BE ADVERTISED AGAIN

Hopes were rekindled for the proposed road to be built from Watts Switch to Yarrellton west on Highway 77 Tuesday, when County Judge Jeff T. Kemp received a communication from the office of D. C. Greer, State Highway Engineer at Austin.

Residents of the communities to benefit from the road were mystified when advertisement for bids on Aug. 28, brought not a single bid on this estimated $70,000 project. Senator Kyle Vick immediately went to Austin and intervened in an effort to have the project readvertised.

The letter from Greer's office said in part:

"As you know, this project was advertised for bids August 28, 1946, without a single contractor submitting a bid. At this same letting date three other farm-to-market projects shared the same fate located in widely separated areas. These are illustrations of prevailing state of national conditions. Even in normal times, the path of progress is strewn with obstacles. Today, the obstacles are more numerous, more complicated, and of greater significance. At times the ingenuity of our engineers is taxed to an unreasonable extent in order to cope with the many problems with which we are confronted. The patience shown by you and the citizenry at large has been most gratifying, and has lent encouragement to the Commission and our engineers in the task at hand.

"The project was not readvertised for the September letting to allow time for investigation to see if causes other than general economics of the day might have lessened the attractiveness of this work to contractors. As we have not been able to find extraneous causes we now plan to readvertise the propect for the October 22-23 letting."

Taylor Humiliated by Gatesville; Killeen and Rosebud Also Lose

The Gatesville Hornets humiliated the Taylor Ducks with one of the worst defeats in the Duck's history, when they soundly trampled them beneath a 38-0 score on Taylor's home field.

In a nip and tuck game from start to finish, the Lampasas Badgers nosed out the Killeen Kangaroos 14-13 at Lampasas, and Marlin toppled Rosebud at Marlin, 14-12 after trailing at the half. Joe Bolin, who stood out for the Marlin boys here last week, was the principal pain in the neck to the Rosebud squad.

YOEMEN IN CLOSE WIN OVER CALDWELL FRIDAY

In a game marred because of innumerable penalties and fumbles of both teams, the Yoemen emerged victorious over the Caldwell squad by the close score of 7 to 0, Friday night at Caldwell.

In the second quarter, Paul Burke, Yoeman backfield ace, faked a pass, then skirted his own right end to race 16 yards for the only touchdown (which counted) in the game. He then stepped back and split the uprights for the extra point.

Though the Yoemen were expected to win the game, fans were rather disappointed in the close score. Last year's results was 49-0 for the men of Yoe high. Coach Jackson, somewhat relieved, over emerging without an injury, was not surprised, and was pleased with the game because it brought to light misplays on the part of some squadmen, which he was unable to detect in last week's rampage.

The Yoemen scored again in the third quarter but the play was called back because of offside penalty. This play resulted from a pass from L. Michalka to T. J. O'Neil who crossed the goal line. The pass and run was for about 50 yards.

Coach Jackson will put his charges through the mill next week, ironing out the defects detected in the Caldwell game, in preparation for the game here next Friday night with Navasota, who is expected to be at least a handful for the local lads.

Education Benefits for Army Enlistments to Expire October 5th

A directive just received at Fourth Army Headquarters, San Antonio, from the War Department concerning the October 5th deadline for enlistment in the Army states that, "An applicant, to be assured of the full benefits of the free college, trade or business school education, must upon completion of an enlistment in the Army, apply, be examined mentally, as well as physically, and finally accepted and sworn in before midnight October 5th," according to Colonel Jean Edens, San Antonio District Recruiting Officer.

"In order to comply with the directive, applicants from Recruiting Stations outside of San Antonio must be shipped, so as to arrive at the Main Station in San Antonio not later than 10:00 a.m. October 4, 1946 to permit their processing, within the deadline," Col. Edens warned.

Adding to the statement of Col Edens, Master Sgt. Samuel L. Frazier, of the Cameron Recruiting Station, stated that, "in order for applicants to be shipped in time to arrive in San Antonio at the time designated it would be necessary for them to report to his office by 5 p.m. October 2, and respectfully urged all interested parties to come in on time. "It is no small matter to miss a complete free college education by arriving a day, or a few hours late, Sgt. Frazier suggested.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kubecka of Austin spent the past weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Kubecka.

Mrs. Mary Burkeen is among the patients in Newton Memorial Hospital.

Farmers Know What a Profit Is For

AS his own boss, the farmer has long since found out that a profit is not just an extra sum, above the bare cost of doing business, which can be used as you please. It is the main source of funds necessary to pay for a new silo, buy better machinery, and improve the house and the barn.

In spite of the great rise in income, farm profits are no more than necessary to keep the farm plant producing efficiently. It's the same with the iron and steel industry which makes the materials for the farmer's tools.

In 1945 steel companies had left, after meeting all expenses but before paying dividends, only a little more than one-tenth of one cent on each pound of steel sold. The profit on each dollar invested was less than five cents. Year by year since 1941, when the war started, earnings have been declining.

Although last year's output of steel was 19 per cent greater than in 1940, the last prewar year, pay rolls were nearly double but dividends were lower.

There are many misunderstandings and misrepresentations about profits. Some people forget that reasonable profits are a necessary incentive of the American system, which results in abundant low-cost farm products and abundant low-cost steel products.

It is up to those who know what profits are for, and what they can do, to see that they are not destroyed—and with them our high standard of living.

Steel mills need all the scrap iron and steel they can get. The shortage is serious. Farmers can get extra dollars and help increase steel output by sending worn-out machinery, etc., on its way to the furnaces. AMERICAN IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE, 350 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, N. Y.

SEARCH FOR COUNTY HISTORIES IS URGED

A search of bookshelves and attics for local histories and biographical compilations of Milam county was urged by Judge Tom L. McCullough, president of Dallas Historical Society in announcing a Centennial of Statehood project for the Hall of State at Dallas.

"The reference library in this majestic, $1,200,000, state-owned shrine of Texas History wants a copy of every book, pamphlet, and special edition of newspapers dealing with the history of the county, and its towns, churches, families, and organizations," Judge McCullough declared, in inviting citizens of the county to participate in the search.

"The items sought are not available from book dealers, and many of them are out of print. Only through the cooperation of citizens who are interested in the preservation and dissemination of the history of their county can the Hall of State hope to locate the desired materials," he pointed out. "In the Hall of State, the general public will have access to them for reference use."

Full information about available materials on the county should be sent to Director Herbert Gambrell, Hall of State, Dallas 1, Texas. He stresses that pamphlets, locally printed histories of all kinds, and anniversary editions of newspapers are especially desired.

A special exhibithion of county histories will be shown in the Hall of State during the State Fair of Texas in October, if the response to his appeal should justify it. The Hall of State, in the center of the Fair Park will be open daily to visitors, free of charge.

1700 Bales New Cotton Received at Compress

Up to noon Monday 1700 bales of new cotton had been received at the Cameron Compress, it was reported by P. W. Davis.

Cotton production was the lowest in history with the possible exception of 1925. The outlook was growing more dark as the harvest season progressed.

Excessive rain from January to May prevented normal plantings and the 60-day drought through July and August sealed all hope of production. It has been estimated that the county may not reach the 10 thousand bale yield of 1925, an all time low.

Rev. Homer Burns, pastor of the Assembly of God church at Tyler, was a business visitor in Cameron Monday.

Veterans Are Urged To Keep Their G. I. Insurance in Force

Millions of veterans are losing money. They are letting go of their shares in the biggest life insurance company in the world. Every time a veteran lets his GI life insurance policy lapse, he is throwing away his part ownership of the biggest business in the world.

But there are many other reasons why veterans should hang on to their National Seravice Life Insurance. The provisions of the new bill amending the National Service Life Insurance Act give veterans many added insurance privileges. As a result, GI insurance is more like commercial insurance than ever before and is better suited to serve the peacetime needs of ex-service men and women.

It is the safest, cheapest protection money can buy—safest, because it is backed by the U. S. government—cheapest because the government pays all the overhead of the insurance operation and makes no profits on the transaction.

Besides, the GI policy a veteran holds is actually a share in the biggest insurance business in the world. This is as true of a GI policy-holder as of the policy-holder in any mutual insurance company.

So, if by mistake or by carelessness you veterans have let your insurance policy lapse, reinstate it immediately. Your nearest Veterans Administration office will tell you how easy it is to get your insurance back. In most cases you can reinstate a lapsed term policy by the simple process of paying two months premiums, no matter how long the policy has been lapsed.

If you are among the thoughtful, farsighted veterans who have held on to their National Service Life Insurance policies, continue to make your payments regularly. By holding o nto your present policy—or by reinstating a lapsed policy—you stake a claim to all the privileges the new Insurance law provided. You give your families the safest kind of insurance protection available anywhere . . . And you retain your share in the largest insurance business in the world. For further information inquire at the Veterans Administration Office located at 206 North Central, Cameron.

Clayton Kahler, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kahler of Cameron, left Sept. 8 for Denton where he will enter school. Mr. Kahler was in the armed service for three years during the war and served in the Pacific Theatre of Operations. He will enter school as a pre-med student.

Old Presbyterian Bell Rings Out Again As Call to Worshippers

Once again the old bell of the Presbyterian church rings out its fine, mellow tones atop the Presbyterian church on North Central avenue, calling the faithful to worship.

This bell called the worshippers of the first building of the church many years ago, and now has been moved to its new location, atop the present church.

Henry Dakel has been appointed official ringer and it is with much pleasure that Mr. Dakel has accepted the job of calling the members to worship.

All Cameron will be glad that it has been called back into service, as the tones are fine and much loved by the old citizens of the town, and will also be loved by the younger ones.

Take a Closer Look at SEED

Here is the germ of a red clover seed sending out a soil-anchoring rootlet which in a short time will have the power to fix nitrogen from the air.

Simultaneously, it will improve soil fertility, grow a high-protein crop for livestock and pass on to humans the healthful carotene and vitamins of milk, butter, eggs and meat.

The world needs more of such crops. The price per bushel is excellent for almost every kind of legume and grass seed, soybeans and vegetable seeds. It will pay you well to set aside several acres this fall and arrange for a nearby All-Crop Harvester to save every possible bushel.

The All-Crop Harvester is recognized for its ability to cut close and glean low-hanging pods. Its wide, rubber-cushioned bar cylinder protects the delicate germ and minimizes crackage.

The All-Crop Harvester makes it possible to harvest over 100 seeds which can end human suffering from malnutrition and bring new prosperity to farms everywhere.

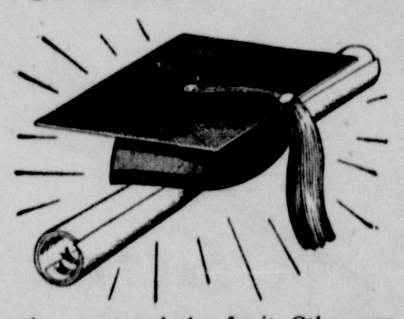
SET YOUR SIGHTS

It takes planning to achieve a goal



Some young men know what they want and plan for it. Others are still looking for their niche. The new Regular Army can help both.

Perhaps you want to go to college but can't afford it. If you enlist in the Army, you'll get your chance. Honorably discharged after a three-year enlistment, you are eligible for 48 months of education at any college, trade, or business school for which you can qualify. The Government will pay your tuition, laboratory fees, etc., up to $500 per ordinary school year, plus $65 a month living allowance—$90 a month if you have dependents.

If you haven't found your spot, an Army enlistment offers you training in any of 200 trades and skills. You leave the service eligible for further training at the best civilian schools.

You can assure yourself of the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights if you enter the Army on or before October 5, 1946. See your nearest Army Recruiting Station for details.

HIGHLIGHTS OF REGULAR ARMY ENLISTMENT

1. Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men now in the Army with 6 or more months of service.)
2. Enlistment age from 18 to 34 years inclusive (17 with parents' consent) except for men now in Army, who may reenlist at any age, and former service men depending on length of service.
3. A reenlistment bonus of $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service, provided reenlistment is within 3 months after last honorable discharge.
4. A furlough for men who reenlist within 20 days. Full details of other furlough privileges can be obtained from Recruiting Officers.
5. Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to enlist or reenlist.
